Dr. Harish Patidar
Head of the Department

Firstly, I want to emphasize the importance of continuously improving both technical and communication skills. In today's competitive world, excelling in technical knowledge is essential, but so is the ability to communicate effectively. Participate in workshops, join technical clubs, engage in group discussions, and take every opportunity to present your ideas. These experiences will prepare you for the professional challenges ahead.

To the parents, your support is crucial in motivating your children to regularly attend classes and engage actively in their studies. Encouraging a routine and showing interest in their academic progress can boost their confidence and commitment. Regular class attendance is not just about fulfilling requirements; it's about absorbing knowledge, participating in discussions, and developing critical thinking skills.

Together, let's strive for excellence and make the most of the opportunities that come our way.
